PREFACE

This edition of the Japan Christian Yearbook continues the trend towards a yearbook amounting to little more than a directory of Protestant missionaries and missionary societies in Japan. The advisability of such a reduction of the scope and historical value of this publication is being questioned and, although there may be some who would prefer nothing more than an annual directory, we hope there will be serious reconsideration of the future nature of the Yearbook when the Fellowship of Christian Missionaries holds its annual meeting this summer.

We are publishing the book earlier this year than has been the case recently with the expectation that the directories will prove to be more accurate for a longer period of time. Yet please do not think of this book as an early replacement of the 1955 edition. Inasmuch as this edition contains the obituaries for 1954 as well as 1955 and omits statistics and graphs which were a feature of last year's book, we hope you will find that each edition enhances the other's usefulness.

Considerable criticism, much of it justified, has fallen upon the graphs and statistics published last year. We especially regret the inadequate visual indication of the change of scale in some of the bar graphs. There are other imperfections also for which we apologize. Nevertheless we hope you will continue to find the graphs and statistical tables as helpful as we have, as you seek to understand and interpret the complexities of the Christian movement in Japan. Obviously the gathering, evaluating, and presenting of statistics requires experienced personnel working continuously over a period of years.

We cannot put this book into your hands without expressing our gratitude to the members of the Editorial Committee and to all those who have helped by providing information. We especially thank Dr. A. J. Stirewalt for compiling the obituaries with such care, Dr. Sigurd Aske for his fine survey article, Mr. & Mrs. Kitchen for their long labor on the directories, and Mr. Miyoshi of the Kyo Bun Kan for his patient attention to the many details of publishing.

The Billy Graham crusade has just been in Japan as we go to press, and we would like to gratefully acknowledge the blessing he has brought to the cause of Christ in this land, expressing the hope that the seed he planted will be nurtured unto a mighty harvest. Among other things, we Christians are left more keenly aware of our mutual need to forgive and forget much that is in our past. May God grant that all of us, being humbled at the foot of the one cross, may rise to proclaim in harmony the one gospel of our one Lord to a people more ready than ever before to hear, and repent, and believe.

The Editors.

TRENDS IN THE CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT IN JAPAN

By Sigurd Aske

This article makes no attempt to enumerate all important events in the Christian movement in Japan during 1955.¹ Rather the purpose has been to sharpen up and to analyse briefly some of the more evident trends in the Protestant Church in this country. To the extent which a discussion of political and economic aspects is deemed a prerequisite toward an intelligent understanding of the general religious situation, a summary treatment of these fields is presented as an introduction. The only valid reason why this article has been written by a person who has been but five years in this land is that I was so requested by people who perhaps should have known better.

POLITICAL TIDES

Early in June 1955 the governments of Japan and the USSR began negotiations aimed at regularizing diplomatic relations between the two countries. Throughout the year Red China and Japan were gradually being drawn closer together through increased attempts at trade and cultural interchange. These two phenomena colored to some extent most of the other political events in Japan during 1955.

When Mr. Hatoyama as early as February campaigned under the slogan "Diplomatic Relations with Communist China and the USSR" he must have had a feeling of the undercurrent of international good will that came to the surface during the Geneva Big Four Conference in July this year. He was here tackling head-on a problem which the Yoshida government had refused to take up. That this impressed the man in the street is evidenced by the support given to Hatoyama in the general election.

While the Hatoyama government never actually attempted to alter the basic pattern of close partnership with the USA so firmly established by Yoshida, the public was to some extent led to think that Hatoyama was more independent of the USA than his predecessor. Though neither Liberals nor Socialists were basically opposed to opening negotiations with the USSR or to an increase in trade with Red China, both groups have been disturbed by the simplicity of Hatoyama's views in these matters. The Liberal Party leaders have expressed their concern lest the government's policy should estrange Japan from the friendship of America and the western nations, and play into the hands of the Communists. The Socialists have time and again attacked Hatoyama's “two-faced diplomacy”.

Whether the recent merger of the Democratic and Liberal parties, and the union of the two Socialist parties have created a greater degree of stability in the political field in Japan, it is too early to say. The impression a non-politician is left with after having lived through the year 1955 in post-war Japan is that it was a year of political uncertainty.

A most welcome sign of hope for possible future improvements in Republic of Korea—Japan relations came toward the end of the year with the exchange of open letters between Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa and ROK President Dr. Syngman Rhee.

ECONOMIC TRENDS

The economic situation presents an outward picture of remarkable post-war recovery. Compared with last year, when newspaper headlines frequently were spotted with the word “depression”, the present mood, though cautious, is far more optimistic.

The bumper rice crop this year has of course been a tremendous factor, with a reported all time record of 70 million bushels above average, 93 million above 1954. Other important data show the same upward trend: industrial production up 13% (over 1954), steel production up 12.8%. During the year Japan moved up to third place among shipbuilding-nations, outdistancing by far the USA. The first half of the year showed a favorable monthly average balance of exports over imports of some US $ 23 million.

Thus it seems that the deflationary policies put into effect late in 1954, emphasizing rationalization and increased productivity with the purpose of creating a favorable balance in Japan's foreign trade, have achieved their desired goal.

All Japan's economic ills are not by any means cured, however. Coupled with an apparent improvement in the economic field, at least as viewed from the international angle, is a considerable degree of uneasiness and concern for what may come next.

The road into the future is indeed dotted with all kinds of danger signs. 40% of the GATT² member nations refuse to grant Japan trading privileges extended to other GATT members. The promise of increased trade which Red China a year ago used as bait for the opening of informal relations is still but a promise. Possible unfair restrictions on Japan's trade with foreign countries remain a constant threat to the economic stability of this nation. Finally, behind the apparent prosperity are two inherent weak spots: the state of overproduction and the threat of chronic unemployment. Any determined attempt to cure any one of the two tends in the long run to aggravate both. This presents to Japan a dilemma to which no government has yet found a satisfactory solution.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT

What is the sentiment of the Japanese people toward

2. GATT=General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade

foreigners in general and toward Americans in particular? Is the government once again putting pressure on foreigners, including the missionaries, in order to have them leave for home? These questions have been asked and answered repeatedly during 1955, not entirely without reason.

First, there has been the Income Tax problem. Not a few people, including missionaries, have been inclined to interpret the revision of the tax law as the beginning of a long range expulsion program. That the greatly increased personal income tax will force a number of missionaries to leave Japan is unfortunately true. Some mission boards have already made plans for future reduction in the number of missionaries here. But that this was even a side-purpose behind the revision of the Tax Law is unlikely. It may be pointed out that the tax agreement now in effect is expiring, making it necessary for some new arrangement to be worked out. The new regulations quite clearly aim at putting Japanese and foreign residents on the same level. At the same time they provide an additional burden on the foreigner who may not necessarily benefit from exemptions available to the average Japanese.

The American atomic "Honest John" artillery piece and problems related to US military bases in Japan have repeatedly made headlines during the year. Headline readers are tempted to conclude that Japan is growing more anti-American as time passes. Looking into the actual conditions behind the headlines, however, inevitably leads to a somewhat different conclusion: there is presently no tendency toward stronger anti-foreign or anti-American feeling in Japan.

It was in 1952, not 1955, that foreign owned cars were overturned and set afire in Tokyo. And even then it was clearly a communist inspired riot and not a spontaneous outburst of popular emotions.

A factor that comes into play here is the present tactics of the Communist Party in Japan. All church leaders whom I interviewed were in complete agreement that communist power in this country is on the decline. The Reds have come a long way down hill since 1952, at least in popularity, and probably in actual strength. Party membership is down to a bare 30,000, from 108,000 in 1950. Only 2 communist representatives were elected to the Diet in the last general election.

Personally, I am of the opinion that the above results spring more from a change in tactics than from an actual loss of strength. True, the Reds did make a miscalculation of public sentiment at the time of the May Day riots in Tokyo in 1952, and a similar blunder when the Peking Red Cross Delegation headed by Miss Li Te-ch'uan toured Japan in 1954. The fact that communist-lead youths took over to the extent that the police were refused entrance to public places made thinking individuals visualize what might happen in the future should ever a crowd of this caliber ascend to power. These and other considerations made a change in tactics necessary, and this is what we now witness. Instead of any exhibition of brute force, the so-called "United Front" tactics call for increased activities in the cultural field. All such efforts within the framework of the labor unions have the blessing of the C. P. The poor showing at the last general election must at least partly have been because of the fact that the Reds in many areas withdrew their candidates in favor of the Farmer-Labor Party or Socialist Left representatives in the obvious hope that these men would better serve communist aims such as Russian friendship, no armament and anti-Americanism.

Worth noting is also the fact that since the foreign minister of the People's Republic of Korea last year stated that the Korean communists in Japan would not, as Korean citizens, interfere in the internal problems of the Japanese nation, the political activities of this large segment of potential trouble-makers have been controlled down to a gentle simmering. Nor do they any longer belong to the Japan Communist Party.

The amazing show of strength in the April local elections in Tokyo, when no less than 41 were elected Ward Assemblymen (out of a total of 938), while not approximated in other places, was startling enough to create question-marks regarding the presumed decrease of Red strength in this country.

Turning again to the much discussed anti-Americanism, whenever I have asked American missionaries if they have felt such antipathy directed against themselves as individuals, the reply has almost always been in the negative. This has led me to diagnose this "anti-foreignism" as mainly a political phenomenon, not something that has penetrated into the socio-cultural sphere.

To be outspokenly anti-US in these days of political turmoil is a negative way of stating one's patriotism. And Japan Anno Domini 1955 is definitely pro-Japanese. After years of post-war confusion and disillusion, the nation is making real headway in the painful process of finding itself.

THE RELIGIOUS SITUATION

The religious situation in post-war Japan has been repeatedly expressed, in over-simplified terms, as being that of confusion. This is our opportunity. A man in confusion and distress is willing to listen to anyone. Here is also our limitation: the man who is willing to listen to you, readily lends his ear to others. And there always is some other prophet, preaching some other "gospel."

When the emperor in 1946 declared himself a human being without divine origin, he kicked from under the feet of the Japanese people their traditional basis for moral and ethical teaching: the belief in themselves as a model nation. Japan from 1945 till now has had no criterion by which to judge and evaluate doctrines and ideas that have come to the islands. The latest arrival tends to claim the day.

THE PROBLEM OF THE REAR EXIT

Many wonderful reports have been written from Japan about the possibilities for Christian work in post-war Japan. Most of them have had something to do with the truth. However, we need to keep in mind that while such reports usually are written from the point of view of the church entrance, the problem of the Japanese church since 1945 has been that of the rear exit. New people are continually coming into contact with the churches, but somehow the audiences remain numerically about the same.

As of 1955 report writers will have to look for a new theme. Even a quick glance at available statistical data suggests this. Several writers in both the secular and the Christian presses in Japan have already concluded that the main problem is now no longer at the back door, but rather at the entrance of the church. The bases of their reasoning are figures such as these:

	1950	1953	1954	1955
Average Sunday worship attendance	80,150			78,259
Baptisms (NCC related churches only)		14,395	12,729

However, while here merely suggesting that perhaps the area in which to concentrate the efforts of the church is the congregational life of the churches, let us look at the situation more in detail.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE DOWN

A number of pastors of established churches throughout Japan report a marked decrease in the number of persons attending church services, some as much as 10% over against 1954. In missionary dominated congregations a number of factors are involved which make it difficult to form any conclusion on the basis of figures available.

In connection with the (Kyodan) National Missionary Conference in Osaka November 2—3, 1955, the evening edition of the Mainichi Shimbun carried a profoundly interesting article entitled "Christianity's Trouble". While the situation used to be that church attendance was larger than church membership, the figures this year show a different trend:³

Church membership	126,000
Church attendance.....	46,000 (36.5%)

Among other things, the decline in Sunday service attendance was analysed. Increased cultural activities sponsored by business firms, companies and schools, the misuse of Sunday for travel, and the Christian housewife's responsibility in a home where she may be the only Christian were the main factors listed. The writer goes on from there, however, to conclude that the problem goes far deeper, and in the majority of cases may be attributed to weak faith on the part of the individual. The Christian faith is by its very nature revolutionary, and will inevitably attack the existing social patterns. When therefore many Christians do their best to keep their faith as something outside or separate from their social life, they not only create an impossible situation for themselves, but also hinder the power of Christianity from being applied to the ills of society.

3. United Church of Christ in Japan figures indicating that there are no less than 281 churches in the country that have no Sunday services, are perhaps even more alarming.

The readiness of some pastors to baptize even more or less casual visitors came in for a round of solid sarcasm, as did the unhealthy dependance on foreign funds.

After discussing this phenomenon with protestant pastors from various parts of Japan, I present some of their comments, listed with no concern for their relative importance:

- 1) Shintoism is in a new way reaching out after young married couples. Much is made of the so-called "7-5-3 Ceremonies", when children are brought to the shrines to be blessed by the priests.
- 2) Our church services are naive and unrealistic. They are not geared to the actual life-situations around us, nor do they meet the need of the individuals who come to our churches. Many of the so-called "Newer Religions", which have experienced such fabulous growth after the war⁴ carry their message to the people in a realistic way with advertisements like: "Learn how to settle your family quarrels", "Want to know how to raise obedient children?". Also, they are making available full time counsellors free of charge.
- 3) The church audiences are not required to take much more part in the service than they do in a movie theatre. The main difference is the poor quality of the actors in the churches.

4. While this was generally true up until 1954, there are now definite indications of a cooling off of much of this mis-directed religious enthusiasm.

- 4) The sermons are entirely too intellectual and theological, hence tire and confuse the people instead of giving them spiritual help.
- 5) There is an appalling lack of suitable activities for most age-groups.
- 6) The church has little or no contact with the working classes.
- 7) The church has not been militant enough. There has been no outspoken warning against compromise of the Christian faith in relations with other religions. Rather, much of our Christianity seems to accept compromise even before it is asked for, thus undermining its own fortifications against the day of battle.
- 8) Church narrow-mindedness. The church service has degenerated into a forum for small talk and vicious criticism, where more is torn down than built up.

A NEW SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS

While the years immediately after the war saw the Japanese church more passive, with the missionaries showing the greater initiative, a noticeable trend of healthy self-consciousness has been registered during the recent past. The post-war bewilderment is gone. The church has found herself, and is determined to go forward.

On the 2nd of May, 1959 Protestantism in Japan crosses the dateline and enters upon its second century of activities. It is no exaggeration to say that the Centenary Movement puts its stamp on Japanese church life in 1955. This year and the next few will perhaps be remembered in terms of their proximity to 1959. The church is coming of age. She is busily preparing for the 100th anniversary by, among other things, attempting to bring to a worthy conclusion a number of projects that up till now were left half-finished. Also a number of new projects have been started with the help of the impetus that the 100 years give.

The 14th World Convention on Christian Education is scheduled for Tokyo in August 1958. The General Secretary of the World Council of Christian Education, Dr. Nelson Chappel, visited Japan during December 1955 to help organize preparatory work for the coming conference which will witness some 5000 delegates from the four corners of the world, from approximately 56 nations. Prior to this large conference of delegates there will be a smaller so-called "Institute" of something like 200 Christian educational experts from all over the world in the Kansai area.

The hundred year mark, now approaching with seemingly accelerating speed, has made the Protestant Church conscious of her age and history, and of her accomplishments. As the church is carried toward the deadline she looks around to take stock of her achievements, in order to have something to show to the world and herself in 1959. Certainly not in a spirit of pride, rather it is with true humility that the church examines the fruit of the past century to hold something in her hands as a token of thanks to God and to those of his servants who have been good to this country.

It is on this background that we must see the present efforts to compile and publish a history of the Kyodan,⁵ the decision to erect a Centenary Memorial Kyodan Conference Building within an hour and a half of downtown Tokyo, and a number of similar projects now being planned. Already other church bodies, among them the Japan Evangelical Lutheran Church, have published historical records of their denominations, some of which are voluminous works of more than 500 pages.

Rev. Takeshi Muto, Moderator of the United Church of Christ in Japan, observed last June that there are three trends which he has seen in the annual meetings of the 14 districts of the church:

- 1) Every district is growing in unity and intensity of fellowship;
- 2) Younger ministers are more and more being elected to positions of leadership in the districts;
- 3) The Centenary Campaign of the Kyodan has just begun to roll.

More than her achievements, the Japanese Church has become increasingly aware of her heritage, her many-fold heritage. Here in Japan German speculative theology has battled glad American activism, extreme Reformed Puritanism has clashed with humanistic Liberalism. Now the church is sifting the soil of the battle-field, looking for lasting values. For the church is anxious to preserve its heritage, and in some way or other, pass it on to the coming generations. Though not in any sense weighed down by material riches, the church is preparing her will, and many are the items jotted down on the pages.

5. The term "Kyodan" as used in this article refers to the United Church of Christ in Japan (Nihon Kirisutokyo Kyodan).

The Christian Classic Series, prepared by the Theological Classics Committee over a period of years, and whose first volume was published by the Shinkyō Shuppansha this fall, is an epoch-making publication in Japan. Included in this volume are the ecumenical creeds and a number of special creeds. The second volume will contain works of the Apostolic Fathers, Augustine, Ekhardt, Tauler, Luther, Calvin, Wesley, Schleiermacher, Laud and Edwards.

Above all, the church has become extremely conscious of her responsibility. This responsibility has been brought home to her, not only recently by Dr. Brunner and other bluntly speaking prophets of God with a real concern for the evangelization of Japan, but by the statistics of which the Japanese are masters. In fact, I have a feeling that this responsibility for the surrounding masses of non-Christian people has been almost too staggering for the spiritually relatively weak Japanese church. The sight of the teeming millions streaming to shrines and temples on holidays has stolen the breath and the initiative from the numbered few. But now, no matter how staggering and, humanly speaking, hopeless this task of bringing Christ to the Japanese nation may be, the Church is bracing herself for the impossible.⁶

Front page news has, of course, been made by "Volunteer Visitation Evangelism". A movement of very recent origin with organized groups in more than 200 churches, it is representative of a number of such phenomena on a smaller scale. The 200 delegates to its Third Annual Volunteer Homon Dendo Conference last August at the Baptist Assembly Grounds in Kansai rejoiced together over having led an average of 2.5 persons to Christ during the last year. These people came from 64 Kyodan, 11 Baptist, 10 Lutheran, 6 Episcopalian and 2 Independent churches throughout Japan.

This Volunteer Movement is a truly indigenous movement. Though inspired by similar movements in other countries, it was born and bred in Japan. Led by the Rev. Ryukichi Yoshida, Associate Pastor of the Reinanzaka Church in Tokyo, it is a lay movement calling for much sacrifice and hard work on the part of its mem-

During the years 1937—1955 the Protestant Community in Japan experienced an increase of 55,566, over against a population increase of 18 million. Thus, while in each case the increase, figured on a percentage basis, balances at approximately 25 %, Japanese of 1955 has some 18 million more non-Christian individuals than it had in 1937.

ENCOURAGING TREND IN CHRISTIAN LITERATURE

Missionaries have always been fond of quoting statistics that prove beyond a shadow of doubt that Christian literature has almost unlimited possibilities in Japan. According to a survey undertaken by the Japan Newspaper Publishers and Editors Association in 1954, no less than 94% of the people read newspapers, most of them (77%) every day, others only occasionally. There is a total of 176 daily newspapers in this country, with a total circulation of some 34 million copies. Dozens of well-known magazines crowd every counter. Repercussions from radical articles in any one of the more influential magazines may be felt intuitively by anyone who has his ear to the ground. For not only do the Japanese people read, they are (more than any other people I know) influenced by what they read.

If the Christian Church had fully realized the importance of literature in Japan, more personnel would have been made available for such specialized work. Unfortunately, while the Communist Movement during recent years has made one frontal attack after another in the field of literature, flooding the islands with pictorials, magazines and books, (some printed in Moscow, others in more neutral-sounding places) literary efforts have always tended to be regarded as the "Second Mile" in Christian circles.

However, here are signs of a new era. One such encouraging sign was the Christian Writers' Workshop, a National Christian Council Literature Commission sponsored conference held July 8—30, 1955, with more than 80 people participating.

Under the heading "Another Milestone for Christ in Japan" the Japan Christian Activity News⁸ stated on August 1, 1955:

For the first time in Japan, Christian writers from all over the country gathered together for the express purpose of studying and discussing methods, materials and purposes of writing Christian literature.

An indication of the content of the lectures may be gained from the following list of speakers and their subjects: Dr. Minoru Toyoda—"Christian Thought in English Literature"; Mr. Kojiro Serizawa (a novelist) "Life and Literature"; Prof. Tomokazu Sasabuchi—"Modern Japanese Literature and Christianity"; Prof. Bunnosuke Sekine—"Wording and Sentence Construction"; and Mr. Hirabayashi—"Poems and Literature

8. Japan Christian Activity News, published bi-weekly by the Commission on Public Relations of the National Christian Council of Japan, (Editors Kaname Tsukahara and Peyton Palmore III) is a must for any one who desires to keep up with current events within the Protestant Movement in Japan, and a necessary supplement to the Japan Christian Quarterly and the Japan Christian Year Book. in Denmark”.

The encouraging trend in the field of Christian literature is the emphasis on literature written with a real understanding of the socio-religious background of the potential readers. For years Japan has been rich in foreign books. Translations of Christian best sellers abroad have been attended to promptly. But most of these things have been entirely too foreign. Time has perhaps come, when it is realized that theology, no matter how sound and evangelical, in itself is not enough. It must be combined with an equally sound knowledge of anthropology. We cannot, to speak figuratively, take the Christian message from an American deep-freezer, carry it to a far away foreign country, and there parachute it down on unprepared people. Even in the Old Testament we read that the prophet “sat where the people sat, and slept where the people slept for seven days”—before he brought the message from God. Though my figure of speech should not be stressed, there is need of some sort of an “Ellis Island” here in the Far East for the processing of the many “sound-breaking” visitors from abroad, who often times have a God-given message but only vague conceptions about the very real problem of communication in the preaching of the gospel in a non-Christian country.

The recent substantial increase in tracts and booklets dealing with every-day problems is indeed a welcome sign of better times ahead. One reason why literary evangelism and Christian radio programs have proved so effective in Japan is perhaps rooted in the psychological make-up of the Japanese people. They resent being pushed around. Yet this is exactly what they are prone to be when presented with the Christian message aggressively. Pushed into a tight corner, an individual may indeed "decide for Christ". Only his decision was somebody else's, and therefore will prove to be the first in a series of decisions. It seems to me that the people want to think matters over, gradually coming to a conclusion. The radio ministry and literary evangelism afford a man just such an opportunity. They give a person the freedom to think unhurriedly through the problems, the freedom to check tentative solutions against reactions of other people involved, in fact—take all the time his conscience allots him.

THE EVENT OF THE YEAR : THE COLLOQUIAL BIBLE

The publication of the Bible in colloquial Japanese in April 1955 has been hailed as an outstanding event by Christians and non-Christians alike.⁹ In the spring the National Library Association selected the new publication as one of its "recommended books", thereby suggesting to its 3000 member libraries throughout the country to put this edition of the Bible on special display and include it in the list of recommended reading. Then in the fall the Mainichi Newspapers awarded the Japan Bible Society a special prize for the new "Kogotai" (Colloquial) edition. The Mainichi Prize, awarded once a year for the 12 most outstanding publications of cultural significance, is reportedly the most coveted award in Japanese publication circles.

This recognition of the new translation of the Bible is particularly remarkable in view of the situation that only slightly over 0.5% of the population is Christian, and bears in it an acknowledgement of the fact that the Bible has become a book of significance for the entire Japanese nation.

Welcomed with open arms in all Protestant circles, the translation has also met with considerable criticism, much of which has been temperamental and of little importance. There are points, however, that deserve serious consideration in view of possible future revisions.

The usage of the non-conclusive "de-aro" needs rethinking. The rendering of ancient time units in terms of present day units inevitably puts a stamp of contemporary scholarship on the Scriptures which tends to become out-dated before the ink has dried. This type of interpretive translation represents a deviation from standard Biblical scholarship.¹⁰

The sale of bibles jumped from 40,000 in 1954 to around 100,000 this year (89,016 as of December 1, 1955). Of the 500,000 New Testaments sold during 1955 by far the greater number were in the colloquial translation.

10. With few exceptions, authorized translations throughout the world, including the Revised Standard Version, retain such units as found in the original manuscripts. The problem of time in the Gospel according to John is one of the issues involved. John 19:14 etc.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

After 1952 it has become increasingly popular for government officials to pay homage at Shinto shrines. Interpreted as a tendency toward a gradual return to pre-war religious favoritism, these practices have been closely watched by Christian leaders.

The Japan Bible Christian Council¹¹ has repeatedly protested publicly against these violations of the constitution.¹² However, since the JBCC is a minority group with strong (American) missionary initiative, these outspoken protests have created a good deal of antagonism rather than achieving their real purpose. The National Christian Council of Japan on the other hand, is in a better position to speak in behalf of the Protestant Church of Japan. It was with gratitude that we read of the resolution passed at the NCC annual meeting:¹³

“In censure of government officials who pay homage at religious shrines and are considering rebuilding national shrines, the NCC resolved that religious freedom must be preserved as stated in the Constitution.”

Individual churches have shown similar concern. Several have set forth their attitude toward non-Christian religions and religious practices in official documents. Thus the Lutheran Unity Committee, composed of duly elected representatives from 11 groups presently in the process of working out the basis for one Evangelical Lutheran Church in Japan, in December 1955, adopted the following Statement on Faith and Practice:¹⁴

1. The Word of God teaches that there is only one true God, the Maker of heaven and earth, the Judge of all mankind, and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. As Christians we must give wholehearted allegiance of Him and have no other gods.
2. We hold that any religious practice which denies the one true God revealed in Scripture as Father, Son and Holy Spirit is sinful.
3. We urge all Christian believers to seek to help one another to be true to Jesus Christ, the Son of God, as their only Lord and Savior and not to compromise their faith by participating in any non-Christian religious practice.
4. We urge all pastors and teachers to make known, privately and publicly, the teaching of the Word of God regarding idolatry and non-Christian religious practices. As a guide in applying the above principles we urge that:
 - a. A Christian abstain from any kind of worship or service at a non-Christian altar in the home or in a public place.
 - b. When a Christian attends non-Christian funerals he does not participate in non-Christian religious practices such as burning incense etc.

- c. The Christian funeral should be a Christian witness to the living. (In this connection we recommend that a definitely Christian funeral service be prepared. This is not a reference to the order of service, but to such things as can be used in connection with the service to give a definitely Christian emphasis.
 - d. That in all other family and civil matters a Christian should seek to be a witness to his Lord and Master.
5. We recommend that a permanent Commission on Faith and Practice be established by the New Lutheran Church to study the problem of developing a positive Christian tradition in Japan.

TRAINING OF LAY LEADERSHIP

Though not all have been as outspoken about it as Dr. E. Stanley Jones,¹⁵ pastors, missionaries and laymen are bemoaning the fact that the church in Japan is a pastor's church. This pattern is at least partly a carry-over from feudalism, and a very stubborn thing to change. It is perhaps safe to say that Christian leaders generally are increasingly aware of this weakness, often diagnosed as a major reason why Christianity in Japan has become a "city religion."¹⁶ Much is also being done to correct the situation, particularly in the field of training of workers for the planting of the church in rural areas.¹⁷

The role of Bible Institutes in post-war Japan is an interesting study. In some of the more church-minded groups such as the Lutheran (to mention one with which I am familiar) the Bible School idea was unknown prior to 1940. And speaking of Japan as a whole, the number of Bible Schools increased from 3 in 1949 to 16 in 1954.¹⁸

Undoubtedly there are instances where the Bible Institute merely deteriorates into an inferior theological seminary. The real purpose of such Bible Institutes (in the Lutheran Church, and this would be typical of confessional groups with more or less solid organization) is primarily to give Bible knowledge to ordinary Christians, secondly to train lay people for part- or full-time service in the church.

PROTESTANT MISSIONARIES

It serves no purpose to avoid mention of the deplorable fact that Protestant missionaries in post-war Japan have been split into two missionary fellowship associations. About the same time that the old Fellowship of Christ-

Clark, "Christian Approach of Rural Japan", Contemporary Japan Vol. XXIII Nos. 10-12, 1955, pp. 726-751, and Charles H. Germany, "Rural Japan, The Church's Strategic Mission", International Review of Missions, Vol. XLIV, No. 175, July 1955, pp. 307-315.

ian Missionaries was re-organized in 1947 another fellowship group, the Evangelical Missions Association of Japan came into existence.¹⁹

The functioning of two organizations with almost identical purposes has been deeply regretted by many, but early attempts to do something about the situation met with failure. One reason for this was, no doubt, that the FCM has no statement of faith, and since it includes the majority of missionaries at work in Japan it may be inferred that the fellowship tolerates modernistic theology. EMAJ on the other hand has a definite statement of faith, and has time and again officially taken a strong stand against all non-evangelical trends. Gradually, and for various reasons, EMAJ came to hold its summer conferences at Karuizawa while FCM conferences became identified with Nojiri.

Missionaries who attended both conferences have repeatedly said that they felt at home both at Karuizawa and Nojiri. In both places the pre-eminence of Jesus was felt. And where Jesus Christ is exalted to His rightful place as the Son of God and the Son of Man, crucified for our sin and resurrected for our justification, organizational misgivings fall by the wayside.

It came as no surprise to many of us when the heartening news was reported recently that during the fall of 1955 leaders of both groups have come together for brotherly discussions. While there are no plans for a merger, serious thought is being given to the possibility of publishing jointly a Japan Christian Year Book, a Protestant Missionary Directory, etc. Also, leaders of each group are suggesting that their members fellowship with the brother organization, and are planning conferences so as to make it possible for any missionary to attend both.

Hundreds of missionaries were swept into Japan with the waves of eager good-will that engulfed the island empire right after the last war. Are these people still here?

Available statistical data give no final answer to this interesting query. We do know that there were 175 fewer protestant missionaries in Japan in 1955 compared with 1954 figures.²⁰ But does this roughly 10% decrease in missionary personnel indicate a beginning exodus of people whose initial enthusiasm could not stand the nerve-wrecking test of casual indifference to mechanical minded methods of presenting the Gospel? We do not know.

If their "preaching of the Gospel" was but a poor imitation of the usual Hollywood "happy-end-scene," where the audience joins the actors walking innocently and hopefully into a joyous sunset, then let us hope they never return. Their main contribution in Japan was but to help foster the all too common misconception of the Gospel as superficial (Christian) optimism and western know-how. But if these 175 were lowly servants of God to this strategic nation in the Far East, we pray for their speedy return after a well earned furlough.

THE "NON-CHURCH MOVEMENT"

It would be to invite serious criticism to close an article of this kind without at least a reference to the "Mu-kyo-kai Un-do".²¹ Almost to the same extent that no self-respecting pastor could afford to avoid mentioning the Atomic bomb in any sermon from 1945 on, it has become fashionable in Japan nowadays to acknowledge this exinteresting movement. During Professor Emil Brunner's stay in this country 1953-1955 the movement received much unsolicited publicity.²²

Perhaps when this publicity-dust has settled somewhat a more sober judgement may be formed. Right now in

 22. Prior to his coming to Japan this time, Dr. Brunner made a statement in his book "Das Missverständnis der Kirche" (Zürich 1951) that this movement had contributed as much to the spread of Christianity in Japan as the organized church. the immediate "Post-Brunner Era" it seems almost impossible to arrive at a sound evaluation of the extent and relative importance of this peculiar movement, particularly since its very anti-organizational character defies conventional attempts to obtain reliable statistical data.

SECTION II

IN MEMORIAM

By A. J. Stirewalt

1954

When the aged Paul was confined in that Roman dungeon, facing certain martyrdom, he wrote in his final epistle: "I am already on the point of being sacrificed; the time of my departure has come. I have fought the good fight. I have finished the race. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, will award to me on that Day, and not only to me, but also to all who love His appearing".

The missionaries who have come to Japan are, like Paul, heralds of the Gospel; but unlike Paul, their lines have fallen in pleasant places where it has not been necessary to endure the hardships he endured, or to suffer martyrdom. However, everyone who takes up his cross and follows Jesus has things to endure, burdens to carry, together with disappointments.

But our Lord does not leave any of His servants to continue over-time in the work of His harvest. Since our last conference sunset has come to still others of our group and we believe they have been given the crown of righteousness promised to those who love the appearing of our Lord.

Though some of these were unknown to us in the flesh, surely we do not consider them as strangers for, with the same purpose, serving the same Lord, they and we have been fellow-workers in a common cause, the only distinction being the time of service. It is our privilege to reap part of what they sowed, and thus we rejoice together. Being partakers in their labors we desire to honor them for what they have done.

The twenty whose names are about to be read gave 557 years, or an average of more than 27 years each to Christian work in Japan. This period of years indicates faithfulness. Our Lord only is able to estimate what they accomplished. But this we know: He who called them into His service was ever ready to sustain them, to direct them, and to make their life fruitful. We believe that He did so. Thus in honoring these servants of our Lord, we praise their Lord, and our Lord.

With the passing of these fellow-workers we are again reminded that the evening of life will come to each of us, and that for some of us it is yet only a little while.

Of these twenty, three continued on the field until they were summoned, one after having served fifty-two years, another forty-seven, and still another forty-three years. It is also to be noted that one of these twenty first came to Japan in the year 1885, just twenty-six years after the first protestant missionary arrived, and another in 1890. With such connections we feel related to those of pioneer days.

As we succeed others, others will succeed us until the Lord of the harvest deems it sufficient. We can not be unmindful of what we have inherited, or of what we bequeath. What we leave depends on the extent to which we present ourselves as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God.
